For sale? Group says no thanks to schools

By SEAN KELLY
ANP Staff Writer

One dollar may not seem like a high price tag for the Burton Center in Romulus, but it's more than a local agency can afford.

Sort of.

Actually, members of the Wayne-Metropolitan Community Services Agency and other tenants of the center packed the Romulus School Board meeting Monday to offer reasons why they can't buy the building from the school system.

Among them:

• After the agency buys the building, it will incur all of the costs of repairing the building.

• The agency cannot find a bank to loan it money for repairs, because asbestos has been found in some areas of the building.

• Leaders of the agency believe that, because the school board still owns the building, it should be responsible for all of the repair costs, including a new boiler and a new roof.

Supporters of the Burton Center were also upset with a letter, dated June 27, 1990, sent to Luther Flanagan, executive director of the agency.

The letter, drafted by Joel Carr, assistant superintendent for Finance and Operations, closed by stating, "We are concerned with the maintenance problems and are unwilling to pay large amounts to maintain a building that is of no educational value to the school district."

That drew heavy criticism from the audience. Several agency members said the building houses educational programs such as Head Start, the summer youth program adult education programs.

Both sides arranged to meet with each other and hopefully find some common ground before the issue returns to the agenda during the Sept. 24 school board meeting.

Volunteers help save program

By THEODORE G. COUTILISH

Back in June, when Romulus Community Schools officials decided to drop the summer work program, teacher Dorothy Murray was anticipating a long summer for area youths.

Monday morning, as the program entered its final week at the Burton Center on Beverly Road, Murray smiled and said, "What luck."

To the delight of Murray and about 250 youths aged 14-21, local organizations and volunteers helped save the Michigan Youth Corps program in Romulus, at least for one more year.

"It's a much different program than in the past," said Murray, a program counselor. "For the last eight years, kids worked on school-related projects such as painting and lawn care. This year, some had clerical jobs and more advanced types of training."

Under the program, youngsters earn the minimum wage, $3.80 an hour, and work 40 hours a week. To qualify, they must come from a family that meets the income guidelines. For example: A family of eight with an income of no more than $24,500 would qualify.

Murray listed Annapolis Hospital, the Wayne County Sheriff's Department and the Romulus Public Library, recreation department and department of public works as those providing jobs and supervision this summer.

The savior of the program, however, was volunteer supervisors. The school district previously paid supervisors, but could no longer afford to, Murray said.

After announcing the program would continue last June, Murray was pleased with the response for volunteer supervisors.

Enter Frank Stotts, a maintenance man for the center; Chris Powers, a Romulus school teacher; Pat Sheridan, a teacher in the Huron schools; Linda Flemming, a laid-off autoparts worker; and Zeffie Beaman, a housewife.

Flemming's motivation was simple: supervising youths beats sitting at home and watching TV.

"It's a great feeling to see the kids learn more respect for adult supervision and responsibility for money," Flemming said. "Some of them have blown their

14 people charged with prostitution

By THEODORE G. COUTILISH
ANP News Editor

A judge Friday began weighing preliminary evidence against 14 people accused of operating and maintaining a house of prostitution.

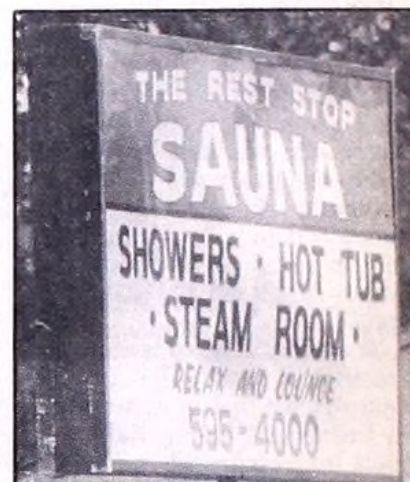

Judge William J. Szlinis in 34th District Court listened to testimony from several witnesses against owners and employees of Rest Stop Sauna in Romulus and Far East Sauna in Inkster.

"This court will hear enough evidence to show a conspiracy and a concerted effort for acts of prostitution," Assistant District Attorney Frank Bernacki said during the four-hour preliminary examination.

Rebutting defense claimed there was no foundation for conspiracy between the defendants. Both defense lawyers also questioned the definition of prostitution and asked the judge to decide whether masturbation was included.

"For the purpose of this examination, receiving sexual gratification for money is prostitution," Szlinis said. "Any type of masturbation in exchange for money is prostitution."

Defendants Kurt Schilk, Stephanie Fetting-Schilk and Gary Rotenburg, all owners of the massage parlors, as well as Matthew Janiga, James Roulo and William Snefkey are facing five counts each. They include conspiracy to keep a house of prostitution, keeping a house of prostitution, conspiracy to accept earnings from prostitution and accepting earnings from prostitution.

If convicted, they face up to 55 years in jail.

The other six defendants are accused of conspiracy to keep a house of prostitution and keeping a house of prostitution. The defendants include: Gloria Posen, Jean Backe, Lori Ekblad, Sheila Olsen, Cari Jones, Angelique Sims, April Motianen and Monika Benedict.

If convicted, each faces up to 10 years in jail.

Police reports indicate outstanding warrants have been issued against two former employees who have not yet been found.

Mourners still bitter about city policy

By THEODORE G. COUTILISH
ANP News Editor

It's been a bumpy ride, but mourners have cleared the final hurdles to stage a vigil tonight at the Romulus crash site of the Northwest Flight 255 disaster.

For the past two years, the Flight 255 support group, "Their Spirit Lives On," has gathered at the site, near Interstate-94 and Middlebelt, to remember the 156 people who died in the crash.

Costly requirements of a new city policy adopted last May almost blocked the annual vigil. The policy requires $1 million proof of liability insurance and a $500 cash bond before a gathering of 20 or more people can take place.

Support group members scratched into their own pockets to pay for both requirements, with no outside help, according to Kay Gleason, a Shelby Township resident who lost her husband in the crash.

"Whatever it takes, we will comply with the guidelines year after year after year," Gleason said. "We are not ravel-rousters. We're only asking three to four hours a year. What else are we suppose to do on Aug. 16 - have a barbecue?"

Other support group members seem convinced the city is trying to discourage them.

"It's obvious the city wants us out of their lives by setting up these hurdles," said Betty Polec, a Mt. Clemens resident who lost her daughter and son-in-law in the crash.

"This is a strong group," she said. "We are a family. If we didn't get the insurance policy, we'd still be on that hill. Shame on the city. We want to honor our loved ones because of the way they lived, not because of the tragic way they died."

Gleason agreed.

"All we want to do is spend time where our loved ones died," Gleason said. "The requirements will probably be tougher next year. It's strange. Dallas doesn't want to be known as the city where John F. Kennedy died. Romulus

City grounds developer's parking lot proposal

By THEODORE G. COUTILISH
ANP News Editor

City council Monday grounded a developer's plan for a new parking lot intended to serve overflow motorists from Metro airport.

The plan, proposed by Mohammed Malik of Troy, was supposed to be the first phase of new development at the site, along Ecorse Road, west of Merriman.

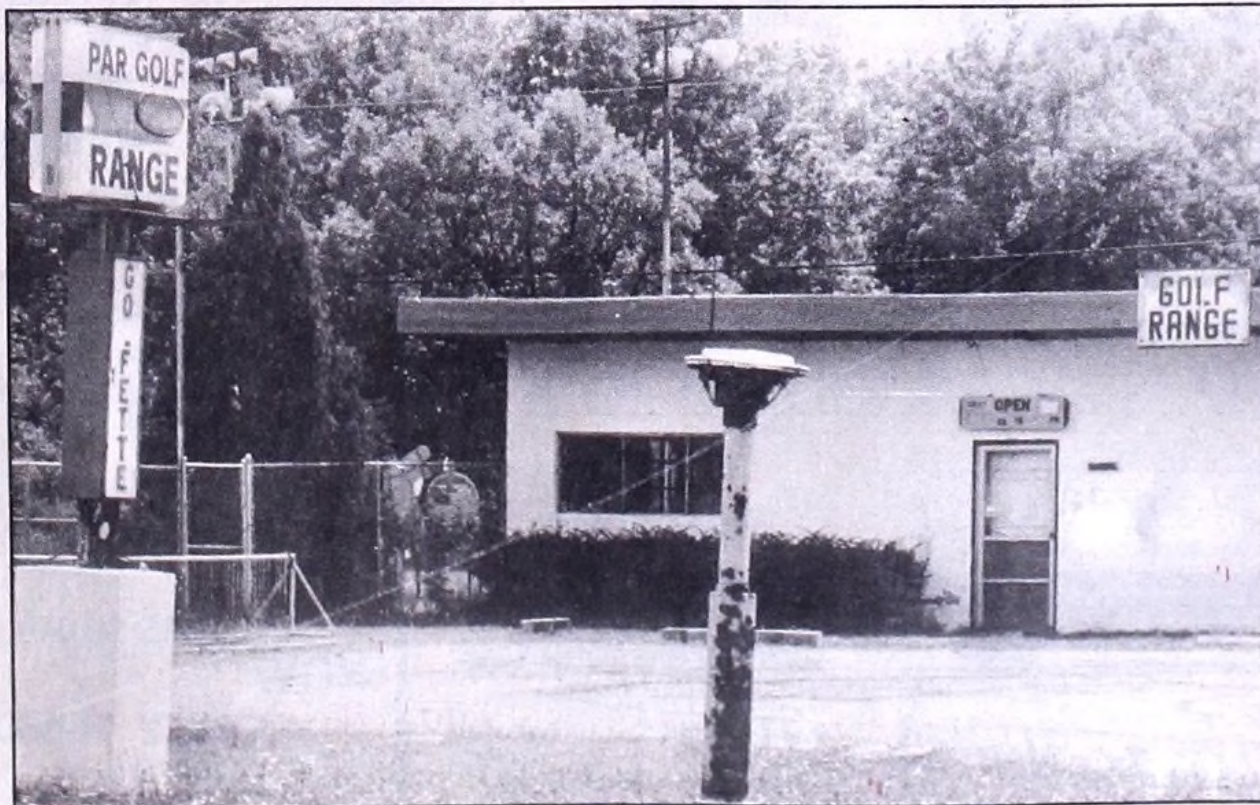

Councilman Noah Bergeron objected to the closing last Saturday of the Par Golf Range, which now occupies the property, for a long-term parking lot.

"I see a good, viable recreation facility, and Romulus doesn't have too many of them, being closed for a parking lot," Bergeron said. "You call that progress? How about the people who live here? What use will this lot have for them?"

"The city appreciates the additional tax money. But what price are we willing to pay for development?"

Other points against the parking lot plan included the lot was too far from the airport and there isn't need for additional parking in the city.

"We don't want to be left with a bunch of empty parking lots," Councilman William Wadsworth said.

Malik, who owns other real estate parcels in the Detroit area, contested the need for parking, especially during the busy Christmas period, and promised the addition of first-class developments such as a motel and restaurant.

"This isn't just going to be another parking lot. It will be a travel center," Malik said. "There is a need for this service. The public deserves this service."

Following the rejection of his proposal, Malik told councilmembers he would be back with another plan.

"They have not given me clear direction on what type of development they want," he said. "I'll have to think about what I want to do. All I know is I'm willing to do whatever the council deems necessary."

Veterans host an open house

To mark the first issue of the Veterans Communications Newspaper, an open house will be staged from 4 to 8 p.m. Aug. 17 at the Towe Center Mall, 15400 Grand River Ave. at Greenfield Road.

All veterans are invited to attend. For information, phone 836-3120.

Roads closed for repairs

The Wayne County Division of Roads will close two stretches of road, one in Plymouth and the other in Dearborn Heights and Westland, from 10 a.m. Aug. 15 through Aug. 17 for repair work on bridges.

The sections of road include north and southbound Haggerty Road, from Plymouth Road to Hines Drive, in Plymouth Township, for repairs to the Haggerty Bridge over the Rouge River. Local southbound traffic on Haggerty, south of Plymouth, will still be permitted to use the road.

County officials have established a detour by way of Plymouth Road to Lilley to Ann Arbor Trail as an alternate route.

The other closure is east and westbound Hines Drive, from Outer Drive to Ann Arbor Trail in Dearborn Heights and Westland for repairs of the Hines Drive Bridge over Beech Daly.

The county is suggesting an alternate route by way of Ann Arbor Trail or Warren Road.

Health advisory is announced

Wayne County health officials have issued a warning of health risks in the lower Detroit River caused by partially treated sewage.

Disinfection of discharge from the Detroit Waste Water Treatment Plant is temporarily curtailed because of repairs. The Detroit River from the Rouge River downstream to Lake Erie and the area of Lake Erie near the mouth of the Detroit River is affected by this discharge.

The lack of waste water disinfection poses a threat to water skiers and bathers, according to Glenn Brown, environmental health director for Wayne County. Also, fishermen who handle fish and fishing gear should avoid hand to mouth contact because of potential disease transmission.

Testing of the water was to be completed today, but health officials advise heeding these warnings for several more days.

Volunteers are needed

Volunteers are needed to review cases of Wayne County children placed in foster care as a result of abuse and neglect.

Wayne County, which has eight Foster Care Review Boards, is one of 11 Michigan counties participating in a program established by the Michigan Legislature in an effort to improve foster care programs.

The Wayne County Review Boards meet each month to review a sample of cases of children who have been placed in foster care to determine if efforts are being made to return the child to his or her home.

If interested in participating, please phone 256-1540.

Walk for meals planned

In an effort to feed more elderly county residents, Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara will host "Miles-for-Meals," a walkathon to fund the county senior citizen nutrition program.

The 5 kilometer walk will take place at 8:30 a.m. Sept. 22 on the University of Michigan, Dearborn campus.

To register, phone Stephanie Cobb at 453-2808.

ROMULUS NEWS DIGEST

Sports program is scheduled

Romulus youths in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades can polish up their sports skills beginning Sept. 17. The Romulus Park and Recreation Department will sponsor an after school program where kids may participate in soccer, volleyball, basketball and floor hockey. Each program will last two months. The program will run until March.

Library converts to new system

Patrons of the Romulus library will notice a big change on Sept. 23. That is when the library will be converting their card catalogue to a computerized system. The new system, called "Intelligent Catalogue," will allow library patrons to access any of the other 59 libraries in the Wayne/Oakland Library Federation. If there is a particular book, record, tape, or video you want that is not available at the Romulus library, you will be able to find out if another library has it.

All library patrons will also need a library card by Sept. 23. Cards may be picked up at the library during open hours.

The library will switch to winter hours after Labor Day. Hours will be: Monday and Tuesday noon to 8 p.m.; Wednesday 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Thursday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Friday closed; Saturday noon to 5 p.m.; and Sunday closed.

Festival to be staged

Put on your dancing shoes and come on out to the St. Aloysius Labor Day Weekend Festival.

Entertainment is free. A variety of live bands will be performing daily, providing something for everyone.

Attendees may buy raffle tickets at $5 each for a chance at winning one of three big cash prizes of $5,000, $1,500 and $500.

You also may try your luck at the blackjack tables or the roulette wheels at the "Las Vegas Games" area. Players must be at least 18 years old and will be limited to maximum winnings of $500 per day.

Bingo will be played each day with proceeds being donated to the St. Aloysius school. Half of the income collected at each game will be given out as prize money. Two cards may be bought for a quarter.

Quench your thirst at the "Spirit Tent," brought back by popular demand. Wine, wine coolers and beer by the pitcher and cup will be provided to those who are at least 21 years old. Canned pop and popcorn will also be available at the Spirit Tent.

Satisfy those hungry appetites with a variety of palate-pleasing goodies. Chicken and Spaghetti dinners will be served on Sunday and Monday. Burgers, hotdogs, kielbasa and pizza will be available daily at the Hamburger Villa.

A variety of crafts and baked goods will be on sale at the pole barn.

Commissioner is honored

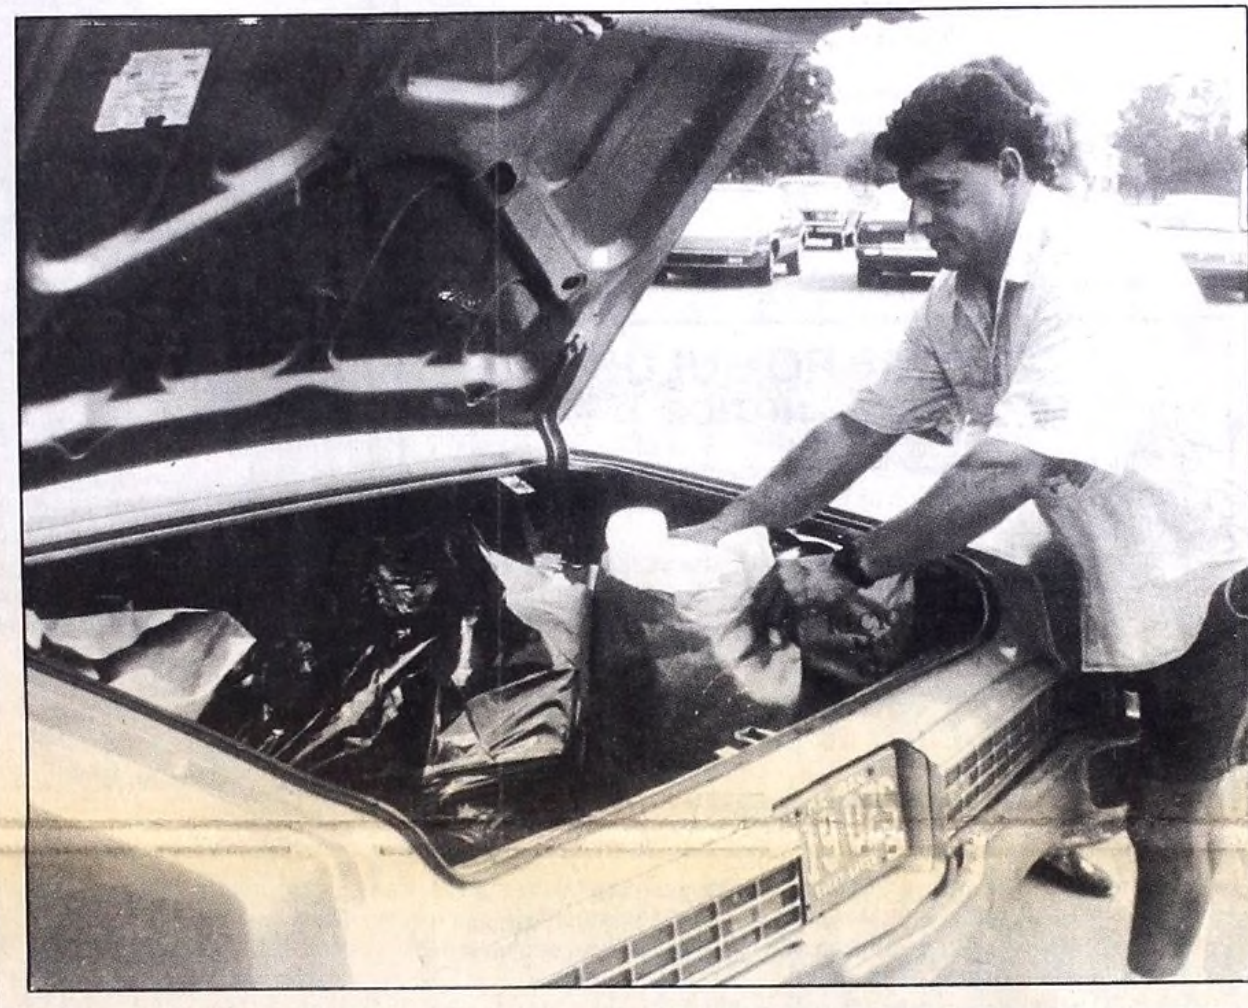

Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard was recently honored by representatives of the 12 congressionally chartered Michigan veterans groups in recognition of her support to veterans and their families.

Volunteers are needed

The Michigan State Fair Recycling Committee needs volunteers for all 11 days of the fair, Aug. 24 through Sept. 3. Each volunteer should be able to work at least one four-hour shift.

Sorting, cleaning and packing of recyclables will be performed by volunteers. They each will receive a one-day pass to the fair, free parking and a "State Fair Recycler" cap and t-shirt.

Anyone interested in helping should contact Les Vilcone, the recycle resource recovery coordinator, at 224-3634.

Mixing pool chemicals dangerous

By BARBARA GOFFMAN
ANP Special Writer

"Crystal clear water" is what a California company promises from its swimming pool chemicals, but Romulus officials say chemicals like it could actually deliver danger if mixed improperly.

In mixing any chemicals, extreme care is needed to avoid dangers such as chlorine clouds by carefully following directions, according to William Greenslait, Romulus fire chief.

"Chlorine is very strong," Greenslait said. "It's stronger than bleach. It burns the eyes and nostrils. You could get a bad chemical burn just from breathing it."

Correct storage procedures should also be followed.

"Swimming pool chemicals that will potentially release chlorine gas are sodium hypochlorite, calcium hypochlorite and chlorinated cyanic acids," said Margaret Leduc, the coordinator of Romulus Emergency Management.

"Many of these pool chemicals are sold to processors and repackers who resell under various brand names. Such packages will always identify the product inside by its chemical name," she said.

The areas used to store potential chlorine releasing chemicals should be away from leaking roofs, pipes, uncovered windows, fire sprinklers or pool splashes, experts said. Containers also should be kept off the floor to avoid a reaction if a flood occurs.

Cylinders of chlorine gas should be stored outdoors or in well ventilated and detached areas. They should be kept from products such as gasoline and turpentine. Contact between chlorine and these substances could pose unusual fire and explosion hazards.

"Explosions also have been known to occur when a pool user switched from one type of chlorine tablet in a pool chlorinator to a different type without thoroughly cleaning the device," she said.

Although there are no records of Romulus residents improperly mixing pool chemicals or having an accident due to poor storage conditions, an increased amount of outdoor pools has led city officials to urge caution.

"I would not recommend mixing any chemicals together," he said. "Sulphuric acid and chlorine should be distributed separately by feeders or by hand."

"Chlorine accidents occur from time to time across the county. It's not uncommon. They result from people not taking the time to learn how to properly use chemicals."

paychecks, but a lot of them have used their money to buy school supplies and clothes. That helps save money for their parents."

In Stotts' case, helping youngsters can be a kick, as long as you do the kicking first.

"Some of these kids come in here high style, but I got them to calm down," Stotts said. "We teach them to paint, operate a buffer and safety techniques. They were willing to learn. I would take them back again next year."

That may not happen if the Board of Education has its way. The school board, which owns the Burton building, sent eviction notices last week to all of the Burton Center tenants.

On Monday, the board reconsidered its action, and promised to take a closer look at its plans for the center.

Area high school students step out in style

Wayne Memorial High School students will be the first teen-agers in the country to have their own school shoe, according to an alumnus.

Todd Beyer is offering this opportunity because he wants to use his business to do something good for his home town, he said.

MVP Products, of which Beyer is vice president, will design a white athletic shoe with stripes in the school colors and with the school logo.

Beyer said 5 percent of the profits made from sale of the sneakers will be donated to the Wayne Memorial athletic department.

He and his associates think personalized athletic shoes for high schools and colleges statewide is the open niche in the sneaker industry that will enable them to cut into the business of giants such as Nike and Reebok.

"Tying education into athletic shoes is a hot idea," Beyer said.

Since MVP began marketing school footwear earlier this summer, the company has received more than 300 calls from interested individuals throughout Michigan, he said.

"With all the negative publicity that's been cropping up with athletic shoes," he said, "such as kids being robbed for their shoes, we are trying to instill a brand new high school spirit and pride into the community."

Beyer is especially proud that MVP's first high school shoe will be for Wayne Memorial.

"It's always nice to get something started like this in your home town, especially when the help is really needed," he said, referring to the recent millage failure.

Beyer is hoping family members of Wayne Memorial students and alumni will order the shoes, in addition to current students, in order to help the school in its time of financial need.

Orders and deposits for the leather tennis shoes will be taken in the school the week of Sept. 10. Four styles will be available, ranging in price from $61 to $69. The footwear should be delivered by late October.

Any high school in which 400 or more pairs are sold will receive a $1,000 scholarship to be awarded to a needy student seeking to continue his education, Beyer said.

Personalized shoes for other local high schools, including John Glenn, will be available later this year, he

Students blinded by science

By THEODORE G. COUTILISH

To most students, summer school is punishment for not doing well during the regular school year.

To students in the Wayne County Alliance for Mathematics and Science program, it's a reward.

The two-week program, which ends today, takes a unique approach to math and science. Instead of working with theories, the 350 students, including 36 from Halecreek, Merriman and Wick elementary schools, were instructed in a hands-on approach at Thorne Elementary School in Inkster.

"Through learning by doing, the experience becomes more meaningful for the child," said Terrel M. Levesne, assistant superintendent of Romulus Community Schools.

"A good example is the concept of an airplane engine. You can talk all you want about how the engine works, and how it moves the plane, but illustrating the fact becomes more meaningful."

Instructors attended morning workshops designed to update their knowledge of science while students participated in hands-on experiments during afternoon sessions.

The goal of the 26-district program is to increase the awareness of science and math in the community. It also is a way to steer more children in the direction of math and science fields, something educators have been trying to do for a long time.

"Not too many people are following through with math and science in the higher levels of education," said Joan Olszewski, a Halecreek teacher and instructor in the program. "Our children are not as well prepared as in other countries. Teaching in this fashion asks students to be more vocal, to think for themselves and it rids the barriers of stereotyping students at all grade levels."

If she had to do the program over, Olszewski said she would not change a thing.

"It's something we needed for a long time," she said. "This has been a valuable tool and well worth my time. I would do it again in a minute."

doesn't want to be known for the crash. But that's the way it is. There's nothing you can do about it."

The support group is the first organization to come under the policy, according to City Clerk Linda Choate.

The insurance certificate frees the city from any responsibility for accidents or damages that occur during the event, Choate said.

The city, under a one-day permit issued by the county, will still pay for overtime of police officers needed during the vigil and costs of posting detour signs by Department of Public Works employees.

Campaign tone set

"Don't bag it" sounds more like the name of a blues song than a waste reduction motto.

But the Conference of Western Wayne announced its new philosophy anyway during a yard waste workshop Tuesday at the Inkster Recreation Complex.

While the conference focused on many facets of waste reduction, its message was simple — reducing grass clippings, leaves and tree trimmings from the solid waste stream can reduce the amount of materials going into landfills and incinerators.

"Instead of bagging yard wastes, we are looking at ways to use composting plus methods to use grass clippings on lawns as mulch," said Jeanna Puluzzi, CWW Solid Waste Coordinator.

Medical team is 'disaster-bound'

By PATRICIA BROWN
ANP Staff Writer

Not many people know that Westland is the state headquarters of an emergency medical system responsible for organizing a medical assistance team in cases of major national disasters.

Health Emergency Medical Service is made up of 16 area hospitals that provide communication support between hospitals and ambulances as well as a medical team that is on call should there be a national disaster.

The philosophy of HEMS is to be prepared for an emergency — because being prepared can save lives.

"We are responsible for coordination of mass casualties. We keep track of what medical services are available and where they are available," said Robert E. Miljan, executive director of HEMS.

In October, the HEMS medical team from this area — which is made up of approximately 70 people with different medical backgrounds — will take part in a drill in Memphis, Tenn.

A staged earthquake along the Madrid Fault will be the cause of the October mock disaster in Memphis. More than 100,000 people will be homeless, 5,000 fatalities will occur and 15,000 people will be injured.

"Our HEMS team will be looking at approximately 1,000 victims from the Memphis disaster," Miljan said.

The victims will be transported with the help of military personnel to Metropolitan Airport in Detroit, where members of the local HEMS team will be on hand to administer medical treatment the injured.

All of the members are volunteers, Miljan said. Before they can become members they must have some type of medical training and must complete a local and federal application. If they are accepted to the program then they must go through a basic training course and take part in the practice drills.

In October, 150 clearing-staging teams are expected to be on site to try and minimize the effect of the staged earthquake. Another 10 to 15 surgical teams assembled from all parts of the country will take part.

The drill in Memphis will be the first to include the federal government playing a role in organizing the disaster, Miljan said.

Local physician and co-director of the Annapolis emergency rooms, Karl Bandlien, M.D. is the medical director for the local HEMS team.

This weekend the local team will stage a packing party at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Allen Park.

"In a real situation our equipment will be prepared — it would have already been sorted and ready to go," Miljan said.

Domestic issues of more concern

By BARBARA GOFFMAN
ANP Special Writer

Cutting defense funding and transferring that money to domestic programs will be Congressman William D. Ford's (D-15th District) goal when the House of Representatives begins its yearly debate on the budget.

Ford's constituents in the 15th congressional district, which includes Belleville, Canton Township, Romulus, Wayne and Westland, indicated they desire this change in funding appropriation in a recent survey conducted by the congressman.

Ford attributed the focus of his constituents' concerns to the many changes which occurred in Eastern Europe this past year.

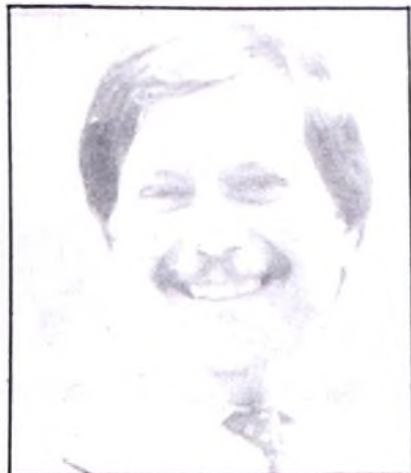

"I find it understandable that people want defense money transferred to programs that will help us at home, rather than being wasted overseas to protect us from enemies who no longer exist," Ford said.

"The residents of the 20 communities in the district want us to redirect our spending to areas we have long neglected: the environment, health care, education and workplace safety," he said. "There is a strong desire to move our focus and resources from the Cold War to the drug war."

The mayors of Belleville and Wayne said they think the survey results accurately portray the beliefs of their constituents, despite the fact that less than 2 percent of 15th district residents responded to Ford's survey.

Specifically, 8.4 percent of Belleville residents answered the survey; in Canton Township, Romulus, Wayne and Westland, less than one percent of the residents responded.

When so few people respond to a survey, it is almost impossible to assume the results can be attributed to the general population, according to Maureen Neary, a researcher at the University of Michigan Statistics Research Library.

Greg Silvenis

William D. Ford

Patrick Norton

Analysis

Additionally, those people who do respond to surveys tend to be more politically active than the average population, she said. Their opinion, therefore, may not accurately reflect those of other citizens.

"It's possible that those people who did answer the survey are different from the rest of the population. The results are not credible," she said.

The conclusions of Ford's 26th annual survey also may be considered questionable because the letter that accompanied the mailed questionnaire could have prompted them to respond as they did.

Ford wrote in his letter: "The (budget) debate will almost surely center on whether Mr. Bush has allocated too much of the budget to the Pentagon, at the expense of domestic needs such as education, housing, transportation improvements, health programs and environmental protection."

"Revolutionary changes have swept through the Iron Curtain countries, whose communist governments have tumbled from power," he continued. "Certainly, the threat to Western Europe of a Soviet invasion has nearly vanished, calling into question our $100 billion annual commitment to its defense."

The wording of two of the 12 survey questions also may have prompted the received responses.

For example, before asking if Congress should authorize $5.5 billion to build five B-2 bombers, the survey said "the B-2 'Stealth' bomber was originally designed to attack mobile targets in the Soviet Union during a nuclear war, a task that the current version of the plane cannot accomplish. Its mission is now similar to that of our current strategic bombers, the B-1 and B-52. The Pentagon wants to build five B-2 bombers this year at a cost of $5.5 billion, part of an eventual force of 132 B-2s."

However, despite the questionably loaded survey questions and the small number of citizens' responses received, local mayors believe Ford's conclusions of his constituents' desires are accurate.

"The results say the people of Wayne want to cut money for defense. That's probably true. It's also probably the general opinion of the county as a whole," Wayne Mayor Patrick Norton said.

Belleville Mayor Glen Silvenis agreed.

"Let's look at our roads, bridges, cost of food and amount of crime. People want money not only spent on defense but on defense of neighborhoods," he said. "We're a fairly conservative community. People work hard and want money spent at home. The survey results are probably representative of Belleville residents."

One survey question local residents divided over asked if fuel economy standards should be tightened for environmental reasons, at the possible cost of 50,000 auto jobs in Michigan.

Residents of Belleville, Romulus and Westland were against the possible fuel standards tightening, 60.3 percent, 56.1 percent and 51 percent, respectively.

In contrast, 51.5 percent of Wayne residents responded that fuel economy standards should be tightened, despite the possible job cost.

Canton Township respondents were divided 50/50 over whether they are willing to accept the possible job costs to help the environment.

Norton said he was surprised by his residents' responses.

"They're not taking the jobs, family, and economy into mind when responding. We have to take a better look at what damage actually can occur to the environment before we support acts which might cost 50,000 jobs. Scientists now are saying the ozone problem might not be as bad as previously thought, for instance," he said.

Silvenis, meanwhile, complemented his constituents for their "common sense" approach to government regulation.

Local activist dies

By BARBARA GOFFMAN
ANP Special Writer

A woman who dedicated the last 46 years of her life to improving the quality of life for senior citizens died Monday night of respiratory failure.

Mildred Farrell was 85 years old.

Friends of Farrell called her a fine, wise lady who had a deep commitment to the community.

Farrell was the longest serving female member on any board in the city. She was a member of the planning commission for 32 years and at one time served as its chairman. She was a member of the Wayne Beautification Committee from 1964 until 1988. Farrell also served on the city Citizens Advisory Council for the Community Development Block Grant Program.

"She was a totally committed Wayneite," Mayor Patrick Norton said. "In the 32 years she served on the planning commission she had an outstanding record and a personal commitment which was unmatched by anyone."

"Millie always came to meetings prepared," Assistant City Manager John Zech said. "She was very conscientious. If she couldn't come to a meeting, she'd call. If she didn't understand something, she'd ask. She was very concerned about people and about the community. If she saw a bent stop sign or an unkempt sidewalk in front of a store, she would try to do something about it. But she wasn't pretentious. She was grandmotherly. She was a wonderful person to work with, and we on the planning commission will miss her."

Farrell also was active with the Wayne-Westland Dyer Senior Citizens Center and was currently serving as publicity director.

She was named senior citizen of the year during the 1977-78 school year by the Wayne-Westland Community Schools in recognition of her outstanding leadership and service.

Farrell also was a long-standing member of the St. Mary's Women's Society.

Please excuse the duplication of this obituary in the Wayne and Westland newspapers.

Opinion

Gasoline costs reflect greed of oil companies

The recent political upheaval in the Middle East is charged as the culprit behind skyrocketing gasoline prices in metro Detroit.

The real gremlin, however, may be the almighty dollar sign glowing in the eyes of top oil company executives. Kuwait is not the major supplier of oil to the United States. We receive only a small fraction of our oil from there.

Why then did the slightest hint of trouble in the Middle East region lead to the huge jump in gas prices to motorists here?

In addition, shipments of oil move slowly. The gasoline we are buying now has been in gas station tanks buried beneath the ground for several weeks, long before the current Middle East situation took shape.

The only apparent reason is the greed of the rich oil companies. They saw an opportunity to hike the price of gasoline to the consumer, and they ran with it.

But perhaps they jumped too soon. Perhaps they underestimated the intelligence of the buying public.

Several area gas station managers have noted a steady drop in business since the hikes began. In turn, prices have been taking a slight downturn once again.

The American public's response to the increased prices was to cut back on their gas use.

Selling less gasoline does not pay the rent.

The customer has spoken, and it appears business is listening.

Maybe they will consider their actions more carefully next time.

Best of luck to local soldiers

Several local service men and women are being called to the Middle East this week.

They are being sent to represent the United States interest there. They are part of a peace-making mission, and yet they must be prepared to encounter less-than-peaceful surroundings.

The journey upon which they must embark is tenuous. The situation itself is stressful.

They do not know what their role in the Persian Gulf might be, but they go willingly.

Our prayers and best wishes go out to these young men and women and their families.

We hope for a peaceful resolution, and a quick return home for these representatives.

Smart move by Canton

Canton Township trustees voted this week not to purchase a small privately owned airport in their community.

The decision was a good one.

Recent airplane accidents near the airport called to our attention the considerable amount of work involved in managing the airport.

And there has yet to be given proof of great benefit to the township by purchasing the airport.

Improvements to the airport could be funded through federal grants, proponents said. Federal grants, however, are not always available. The township would then be responsible for funding. That usually means using taxpayers' money.

Corporate executives could fly into the airport, but would that really effect the economy of the township? Metro Airport is not that far away, and can also accommodate the needs of local corporate leaders without cost to the township.

Worker's blues

We all know and the "Big Three" knows it is cheaper to pay overtime than to hire new employees. Now we know that Mayor Thomas adheres to that policy and put it in writing in your Eagle. That is why the overtime worker can afford so many luxuries, while the laid-off worker has a tremendous struggle trying to find a job at a decent wage. He may even have to apply for welfare. Or maybe he can be hired, at minimum wage, at one of Westland's many malls or discount stores. Please, Mayor Thomas, more jobs for Westland instead of more overtime.

spect for themselves, but seldom is it mentioned how little respect they have for the life they carry.

Why all the justification for abortion if it is so right? Could it possibly be that our country made a terrible mistake in legalizing the killing of millions of innocent children? Could we all have lost sight of the fact that this country was founded on moral precepts and somewhere along the line society broke away from traditional values? Could it possibly be that the carnal desires of man actually overrode any moral reservations people may have had?

This country is the same country that God shed His grace on. And this is the same country that promotes pornography, homosexuality, abortion, rebellion in youth and more. And this country has reaped the results of the self-centered, selfish attitude that prevails. And still people continue in their ignorance, trying to justify legalized killing of the innocent.

Certainly times change, but those who use this reasoning to justify unGodly actions are only fooling themselves. It's unfortunate that so many have believed that morals should change with the times.

What this country needs is a good dose of the truth. And the truth is that the lack of morality in our society has led to most of the depravity herein.

Wrong channels

Although I personally feel that responding to allegations made through the press and not through appropriate channels is non-productive, the flurry of recent letters to the editor in The Ypsilanti Press and The Ann Arbor News, and the distribution of personal opinions relating to the Aug. 7, 1990, Primary Water/Sewer Millage question has prompted me to clear the matter.

All of the individuals involved in these letters are members of a local political group, although only representing themselves and not the group itself. They represent unsuccessful candidates and ex-Van Buren Township Trustees who, as the official record will reflect, did little for the township as decision-makers and have merely carried over with a mindless mission to create as much chaos and confusion as possible.

Many efforts have been made to encourage them to be part of the solution and to work in the best interest of the Township, instead of continuing as they have in the past. To date, every effort has been rejected.

I find now that their effort to cause the millage continuation to be rejected is only an attempt to once again cause economic hardship for our residents for their selfish political gain.

They have given little thought to the devastating effects that will be felt by all Township residents, and most especially by our senior citizens and those on fixed incomes. Have these people no conscience?

At the regular board meeting on Oct. 28, 1986, these same ex-Trustees voted to place four new additional mills on the Nov. 4, 1986, general election ballot in addition to the existing six mills, for a total of ten mills for Water/Sewer Debt. On Nov. 15, 1986, these same people directed the Water and Sewer Commission to conduct a rate review study to generate necessary funds to cover the court-ordered participation in the South Huron Valley Wastewater System (raising water bills).

Are their memories as short as their performance records? If the six mill continuation does not pass on Aug. 7, 1990 the following will be the effect:

As the new $15 million debt is incurred, as a result of court orders, the existing water/sewer millage will continue until it expires in six or eight years plus water bills will have to increase from two-and-one-half to four times their current rates.

I again, request that these four or five people search their consciences and become something positive for Van Buren Township instead of continuing to cause disruption, as has always been their practice.

Even as such, Van Buren Township and its residents are the "best" and deserve better treatment than these people would offer.

4-time winner takes 1990 city title

By SEAN KELLY
ANP Special Writer

Kevin Ryan battled inconsistent putting and a torrential downpour to claim medalist honors in the City Golf Championship staged last weekend at Fellows Creek Golf Course.

Ryan shot a one-under-par 71 Saturday and a five-over 76 Sunday to lead the Open Division Championship Flight and all other golfers in one of the smallest fields in tournament history.

This victory marks the fourth time that Ryan has been the medalist at the city tournament. He earned similar honors in 1985, 1987 and 1988. But the four-time winner was surprised by this victory.

"I've been struggling the last couple of weeks and haven't been able to get out as often as I'd like. I didn't putt well the whole tournament, in fact I three-putted six times, and also shot a seven on the par-three 9th," Ryan said.

But things started looking better for Ryan Sunday at the par-three 17th hole.

"At that point I actually thought I was behind by one stroke, and I hit an 8-iron 2 feet from the hole, then rolled it in for the birdie, that was probably the turning point," Ryan said.

Ryan, 28, is currently working as an employment coordinator for the Detroit College of Business. He claims he owes all his success to his father who started him on the game back in the late 70s.

On Sunday tournament play was delayed an hour-and-a-half as thunderstorms moved in. Consequently many golfers' scores dropped off a bit from the day before.

One golfer who didn't seem to be fazed by the rain delay was the City of Wayne Championship Flight winner Mark Morton.

"I came out after the delay and shot two solid pars, then had some trouble on the par-three 13th when I had a triple bogey because I hit the ball out of bounds," Morton said. The two days and walked away with the Lenny Anderson Memorial trophy, given annually to the Wayne city champion. Morton, former member of the Wayne Memorial golf team, was happy with his fourth consecutive trophy, but admits he had his sights on something else.

"Winning the Lenny Anderson trophy is great and I'm honored, but still my main goal is to win the overall championship. I probably lost it yesterday (Saturday) when my putting was pretty bad," Morton said.

The victory was somewhat bittersweet for Morton, as he edged out his good friend Craig Klimczak, whose two-day total was 160.

"Craig's a real good friend and I almost wish he would have won it, because he has finished second to me the last few years, and we usually golf about the same," Morton said.

Heading the pack in the Canton Championship Flight was 24-year-old Stu Martin. A Commercial Security Representative, Martin tallied a 154 for the tournament and echoed the common concern about his putting.

"My putting was horrendous, but I managed to overcome that, and I just want to thank my mom and dad who have helped me with everything," Martin said.

Following Morton and Klimczak in the Wayne Championship Flight was Gary Clark whose 165 was good enough for third place.

In the First Flight for the city of Wayne, Doug Tompkins shot a 179 for top honors. Brian Smith (194) was second, followed by Phil Norris Jr. (198) in third.

Matt Wiley outdueled Paul Deedler in a playoff for the Canton Championship Flight Trophy. Both charted a 149 after the first two days. In the playoff, Wiley parred the first two holes and when Deedler bogeyed the second hole, Wiley had the championship. Paul Massimilla shot a 164 for third place.

The Canton First Flight was headed by Ken Eck (168). Second place belonged to 15-year-old Ryan Long (186), and third to Neil Holland (193).

Trailing Stu Martin in the Westland Championship Flight were Don Mullett (164) and Tracy Mull (168), who earned third place in yet another playoff.

Terry Castillo led the city of Westland in the First Flight with a 180. David Obyrcki's 181 landed him in second place, slightly edging out Ron Hayes with 182.

In the Open Championship Flight, Todd Rakotz, with 151, placed second just four strokes behind tournament champ Ryan. Jim McComb (161) came in third.

Tim Doughty shot a 180 for first place in the Open First Flight, just beating out Perry Yager (181). Finishing third was John Pitts at 183.

Because of the small turnout, (only 52 golfers entered the tournament) the Romulus and Inkster representatives were grouped in the Open Division.

Women invited to 32nd tourney

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

The City Championship Golf Tournament will have another attraction next year.

It will include women. "I have had several request from women golfers who asked why they couldn't play in this tournament," said William Hawley, tournament director for the City Championships. "I really didn't have a reasonable answer. I just told them I didn't know why."

For 31 years, the tournament has been strictly "for amateur male golfers."

Next year that will change. Recreation officials and The Associated Newspapers, co-sponsors of the tournament, say that there is no reason why the 32nd annual tournament couldn't be opened up to include local women golfers.

So, women golfers may look forward to competing next year.

Although the 1990 tournament attracted about 52 golfers

European tour Wolves beat best in junior soccer

Local soccer players proved that they are among the best in their age group in the world.

The Michigan Wolves, whose lineup includes players from Van Buren, Plymouth and Canton, defeated some of the best teams in Europe during their recently concluded European tour.

At the Wedgewood Classic, the Wolves finished as runners-up to the Manchester Eagles. The "School of Excellence" team as it is called is acknowledged to be the best in England.

In the finals, the Wolves played the Eagles to a scoreless tie, losing to their hosts in the penalty kick "shootout".

Moving on to the prestigious Edinburgh Classic, staged August 2-5, the Wolves came into their own, playing nearly flawless soccer to emerge undefeated as tournament champions.

The Wolves faced tough competition from UDI of Venezuela in the semifinal match and, after a physical battle, surfaced with an impressive 2-1 victory.

In the finals, the Wolves met a determined Scottish team from St. Columbas. When the dust finally settled, the Scottish fans were stunned that a team from the U.S.A. had defeated their best local team by a 2-0 score.

The victory gave the Americans the Edinburgh Cup, which traveled with the team across the ocean for the first time.

The team was coached by Kevin Argue and he was assisted by Gordon Wells. Team members included: Jay Barnes (Westland), Mark Biro (Canton), Scott Buczek (Canton), Danny Christenson (Livonia), Garret Argue (Union Lake), R. D. Dias (Brighton), Paul Dood (Canton), Scott Emert (West Bloomfield), Eric Hayes (Clawson), Sean Noble (Farmington Hills), Trevor Pruett (Plymouth), Charlie Roberts (Livonia), Jeremy Stillings (Canton), Anthony Vettrano (Livonia), Graham Wilk (Canton), and Neil Williams (Brighton).

Preps report for football practice

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Rains greeted most of the prospective high school football players in the area who reported for the first day of practice on Monday.

Under Michigan High School Athletic Association rules, preps are allowed to practice a month before their opening game. However, that first week must be without football pads.

For most area high schools, the opening-day game is scheduled for Friday, September 7.

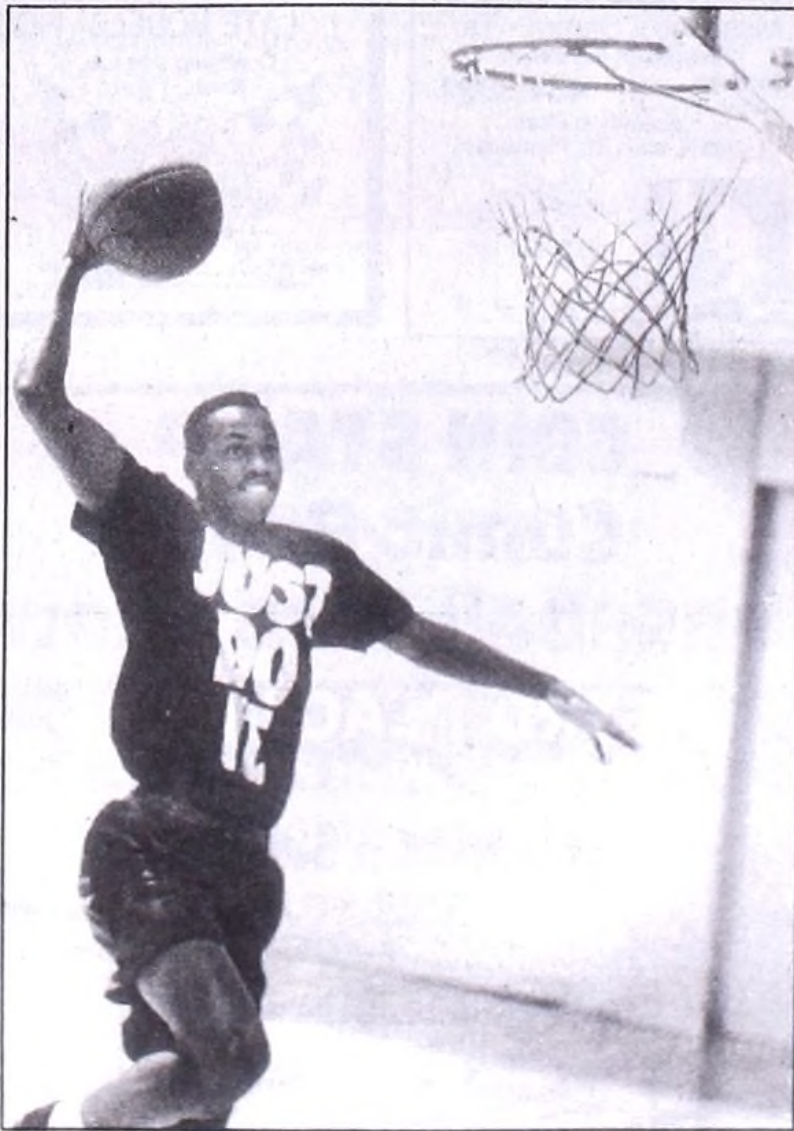

In the meantime, area athletic directors are urging all men and women who are planning to play competitive sports to get a physical examination prior to their first practice. No athlete will be able to participate in a practice without an exam.

Wayne Memorial Athletic Director Bill Hawley is urging all athletes who are planning to try out for the Zebras' cross-country team to telephone the high school office. The number is 595-2204.

"We are also trying to compete our coaching roster," Hawley added, "and are looking for a cross-country coach."

Candidates should contact Hawley at the high school office for further information.

Cager's dunk is worth $10,500

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Former Inkster High cage star Barry Hardy has slam-med-dunked his way to fame.

And the 6-3 Brigham Young University senior is $10,500 richer for it.

Competing in the national amateur slam-dunk competition in New York City recently, Hardy 'out-dunked', flew past his competition and was declared the winner of the contest. It was 'no-contest', according to some of the judges.

The contest brought together some of the most talented basketball players in the country to compete in the Colt 45 Coup D. Hoop series.

"I wasn't sure who I would be running up against," Hardy said. "But I have a lot of confidence in myself, however, you never know just what to expect."

Pay-to-play casualty

Henry resigns as head coach at Wayne

The Wolverine 'A' Conference basketball league has lost one of its outstanding coaches. Chuck Henry, who guided Wayne Memorial to the conference championship and earned Associated Newspapers Coach of the Year accolades, has resigned as head coach to accept a similar position with Walled Lake Western.

Western is affiliated with the Inter-Lakes Conference.

In recent years, Wayne and Belleville have staged some classic duels on the hardwood for the conference championship. Coach Michael Garland and the Tigers have a lot of respect for the veteran coach.

"He's one of the best (coaches)," Garland has said about his arch opponent.

Henry's departure comes at a crucial time in Wayne and the Wayne-Westland school district. With the defeat of a school millage last June, the athletic programs will have to revert to a pay-to-play policy, something that the Belleville athletes can identify with, in order to survive. Each athlete is asked to chip in about $250 to help support the sports programs.

"I had a desire to move on and Walled Lake Western was looking for someone to come in and rebuild their program," Henry said. "I have a lot of experience in coaching and I can point them in the right direction."

During his tenure as head coach at Wayne, Henry has led the Zebras to two titles - in 1984

I have made tremendous friendships here. But I also look forward to meeting the people out there. I have made my decision, and now it is up to me to make it the right decision.

- Chuck Henry
Former cage coach and the 1990 seasons. However, all of the Wolverine 'A' Conference realized that they had to beat Wayne in order to get to the title door knob. Henry has coached at Wayne the past eight seasons.

Henry earned Coach-of-the-Year recognition last year from the Associated Newspapers, Detroit Free Press, and the Detroit News. His career coaching record stands at 207-82. He also spent five seasons as coach of the Falcons of Dearborn Divine Child before accepting his assignment at Wayne Memorial.

At Walled Lake Western, Henry will be teaching physical education at the high school level. That was one of the decisive factors for the switch, he said.

Chuck Henry will again be on the court sidelines when the high school basketball season rolls around. However, the veteran coach will be coaching at Walled Lake Western rather than Wayne Memorial. ANP file photo

Little League to decide world championship

Teams from around the world have converged upon neighboring Taylor to battle for the coveted Little League world baseball championship.

The World Series, which started in Taylor Aug. 13, will end with the crowning of a world champ Saturday.

Only the teams that have been able to stave off elimination in their respective countries and regions will be eligible to compete in Taylor. On Saturday, the two undefeated teams of the tournament will clash head-to-head to decide which is the best Little League team in the world.

Taylor is the home to the Little League World Series for the Junior Division, (13-year-old division) and has the honor of welcoming its first European team, which will represent West Germany.

The World Series will also include teams from the four regions of the United States, Latin America and Canada.

The 1989 champions, representing the Latin American region, were from Manati, Puerto Rico. They defeated the United States Southern Region finalists from Georgia.

Members of the teams will be staying with "foster parents" in the area during their stay in the United States.

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara was scheduled to toss out the first pitch

Monday, weather permitting. Wayne County Commissioner Ed Boike, whose district includes Taylor, has served on the committee which organizes the series since its inception in 1981. He also dresses up as the series mascot.

The games will be played on the diamonds behind the Alfred Sheridan Community Center, located at 12111 Pardee, north of Northline Road and east of Telegraph in Taylor.

one of the smallest fields in its history - the competition was excellent, according to Hawley.

It was also the second time in the tournament's history that rain delayed the conclusion.

"The inclement weather may have affected the play of some of the golfers," Hawley noted, "however, there were some who seemed to thrive because of the rains.

"It (rains) may have dampened the course, but I can say it didn't dampen most of the golfers' competitive spirits."

The City Championship golf tournament also serves as a qualifying round for the Michigan Parks and Recreation's state championships. The five top finishers in the championship flight are invited to play on their city's team at state.

The state championships will be decided Saturday, September 15 at Binder Park in Battle Creek.

Dunk

Although richer for the experience, Hardy is nursing a sore shoulder and arm, he said.

Hardy qualified for the national championship by winning area and regional contests in California.

A 1986 graduate of Inkster High, Barry and his two brothers - Andre and Jesse - were standouts for Coach George Thompson's teams. Upon graduation, he attended a junior college in Missouri before attending Iowa. Last year, he transferred to B.Y.U. in Utah where he averaged 14 points per game.

What will Barry do with his slam-dunk windfall?

"I am heading for the bank right now to deposit the check," he said. "It's just good to know you have money in the bank."

You can say that again.

The animals pictured on this page, and countless others, are waiting for you to take them home. A pet will give you love, trust, loyalty and affection, and all that is required in return is a little food, water and a warm place to sleep. That seems a small price to pay for the satisfaction of a wagging tail or a happy purr whenever you come home. When you go into your local animal shelter, open your heart and your home to one of these creatures, the rewards are well worth it!

Gasoline price hikes not expected to curb sales

By BARBARA GOFFMAN
ANP Special Writer

The increase in gasoline costs should not have a strongly adverse effect on car sales in the near future, according to the new car sales managers of two local car dealerships.

Brian Laggert of John Rogin Buick in Wayne called the media reports of the possible effects of the increase in gasoline costs "blown out of proportion."

Sid Charnock of Charnock Oldsmobile in Dearborn corroborated that view. He said the industry may be affected but only slightly.

"Today we have some very efficient cars," Charnock said, so the increase in gasoline costs should not greatly affect consumers.

"Oldsmobiles especially get excellent mileage," he said. "The gas crisis, therefore, should have even less of an effect on our dealership than upon others in the industry."

Oldsmobile's five-speed Cutlass Lake, for instance, has an EPA standard of 22 miles per gallon in the city and 33 on the highway, Charnock said.

"Our figures will lessen the impact in the price (increases)," he said.

Laggert too said his company will not be hurt by the price increases.

"We are now having one of our best months of the year," he said. "Sales are great."

Laggert said sales may be hurt next year if the prices increase to "outlandish" levels, but "the current problems in the Middle East won't do to us what they've done to the stock market."

Today we have some very efficient cars.

Recreational vehicle owners get a boost

You know the large, slow trucks that pull something, a trailer or a boat? The ones you always seem to get behind when you're in a hurry on the highway? Well, owners of these tortoise-like vehicles have recently been given a boost by state officials.

If the pickup truck pulls a fifth-wheel trailer, and the driver has the right specification on his license, a second trailer or boat can be pulled at the same time.

Introduced by state representatives John D. Pridnia (R-District 106) and Sidney Ouwinga (R-District 18), the new law is the end result of safety studies conducted by University of Michigan researchers.

The researchers found that recreational doubles, as they are sometimes known, are as stable as single trailer combinations if their total length, including the truck, does not exceed 59 feet and they are driven no faster than 55 mph.

ter than 55 mph.

"At reasonable speeds and loading weights, the addition of a second ball-hitched trailer behind the fifth-wheel camper does not appear to affect maneuverability or steering response," said researchers Robert D. Ervin and Charles C. MacAdam of the University Transportation Research Institute.

The approval of recreational doubles should directly affect nearly 4,100 people statewide, said Randy Andersen, a department specialist with the Michigan Office of Traffic Safety.

"It is estimated that 50 percent of Michigan's 8,195 registered 'fifth-wheel' campers will meet the length restriction when coupled with an average boat trailer," he said.

Officials in the recreation industry have protested the length limit as too short, however, pointing out that a limit of 62-65 feet is common in many western states, said Laurie Fenselson, a University of Michigan representative.

To operate a recreational double, a driver must have an "R" endorsement on his license. Anyone older than 17 can apply for the endorsement at a Secretary of State branch office. Applicants must pass a written test designed to sample the skills needed to operate vehicle combinations of this type.

However, drivers who have a Group A or Group B commercial driver license with a "T" (double or triple trailers) endorsement can operate a recreational double without the "R" endorsement.

The Michigan Office of Highway Safety Planning will conduct a study for the state legislature over the next two years.

Playtime

The time has come to confess

Just Desserts

Sue Willett

OK, I did it. Am I sorry? Nope. Do I regret any part of it? Nah...I am a little peeved with my spouse, however, for spilling the beans.

This was one of my favorite pranks, it really was. And now, because my dear husband appreciates my sense of humor more than anyone else who's ever been the victim of one of my practical jokes, I have been forced to confess. It was me. I'm the person who sent the grave marker to John Zech.

He deserved it. Ask anybody who knows him and they'll tell you he needs a little jab to the sense of humor every now and then...who among us doesn't?

John is the assistant city manager in Wayne and haunts his office in city hall at about the same unorthodox hours we keep here. He made the mistake, however, of going on vacation several weeks ago, at which time I decided the time had come for a little revenge.

We had recently agreed to participate in one of those time capsule programs, when local businesses and civic groups bury items which may be of historical interest, mark them appropriately, and hope they are of interest to whomever may unearth them in 50 years or so. Associated Newspapers had agreed to purchase the granite marker for the burial site, and we ordered the marker from, you guessed it, a company which produces tombstones.

When it came time for delivery of the marker, which had been appropriately inscribed, the marker company truck driver phoned me to find out where, precisely, he should deposit this gravestone. That's when it happened. I fell victim to the evil side of my nature, giggled maniacally, and instructed him to take the 500-pound monolith to John Zech's office in city hall, knowing full well that John was on vacation.

For weeks, I have been smiling secretly and giggling at inopportune moments, thinking of John, returning from vacation, entering his darkened office and tripping over this grave marker. The thought of him having that marker in his office and attempting to continue his professional activities was fiendishly delightful. C'mon, the man had to work for about two weeks with a stupid gravestone in the middle of his office floor. Yes, I am fully aware that this is perverse and demented behavior, but it really appealed to my black sense of humor.

Reports of him asking people where this thing came from reached my wicked ears. He was reported to have been describing his near death or dismemberment by tripping over this large, immovable, rather gruesome item several times, all met with my howls of diabolical glee.

Chuckling a bit like Anthony Perkins, I never said a word, until late one evening when my husband was telling me about John finding this tombstone in his office. In a moment of weakness, I revealed my secret and sure enough, it only took a week before my spouse was hinting to John about the source of his stubbed toes and cramped, somewhat unprofessional office decor.

Obviously, now I'm going to have to get them both. Anybody know where I can borrow a chain saw?

Participants of the Wayne County 4-H program are busy all year long. Never, however, are they as busy as during fair week.

Each year at the Wayne County Fair in Belleville, 4-H members are recognized for their hard work. Some of the participants raise livestock that are put up for auction at the fair. Others put in long hours working on their riding skills. Members who prefer not to work with animals may enter any of the numerous arts and crafts competitions, such as quilting, silk flower arranging, baking and painting.

For Natalie Henderson, 1990 4-H Queen, being a member for six years has given her the opportunity to meet new friends and develop leadership qualities.

"This year instead of competing I'm helping out to give back to 4-H what it gave to me," she said.

In past years, Henderson has tried her hand at crafts and has ridden in the horse shows.

As 4-H queen she spoke to Rotary clubs, handed out awards to the winners of the competitions and rode in parades.

The 4-H club has been extra special for Ivanise Pereira.

Like Valerie Henderson, Pereira has met many new friends as a 4-H member.

Pereira is a citizen of Brazil. She is attending school in the United States and will be a sophomore at Woodhaven High School in the fall.

Before April of this year Pereira had never been on a horse. But she was the winner of the Championship Equestrian competition last week at the fair. She rode an Appaloosa named "Moco."

Learning to ride a horse was something that came quite naturally to Pereira, though she said she tumbled off Moco once.

"She didn't give up," said Rina Platpir, Pereira's guardian.

Along with her trophy for the equestrian competition, she won first-place awards for cake decorating, china painting and a silk flower arrangement.

"Everyone has been so helpful," Platpir said. "She made a lot of friends so fast."

Some members of 4-H, like the Stachowski brothers of Canton Township, take on the responsibility of raising livestock to sell at the annual auction.

They have to be able to part with an animal that they have fed and groomed a whole year, said David Crawford, a 4-H youth agent. They also have to resist becoming too attached to them.

Last year Joey Stachowski, 10, raised a market goat that he had to sell at the auction.

"He didn't want to sell it," said older brother Eddie who raised a Polled Hereford steer this year. "He got over it in a day."

Like his two older brothers, Eddie, 14, and Frank, 15, Joey also raised a Polled Hereford to sell at the 4-H auction.

Joey's 16-month-old Hereford, won the Reserve Champion Steer prize. The animals are led around a center ring in the auction barn while the judges view them. The 1,200-pound steer was a bit more than the 10-year-old boy could handle during the judging.

"He pulled me around," Joey said. "Someone had to come and help me."

Eddie's steer, whom he dubbed "Arnold Schwartzneggar," won the Grand Champion Middle Weight trophy.

Within a day or so after the auction the purchased animals go to a slaughterhouse.

"It doesn't bother me," Eddie said, as he prepared Arnold for his big moment in the auction ring. "He doesn't know."

The Grand Champion prize went to Frank's steer. "I didn't name him," Frank said. "I just call him 'dude'."

"Dude" was also being readied for the auction.

"He's usually pretty docile until you get him into the ring. Then he gets scared," said Frank as he groomed Dude's reddish brown coat with a stiff wire comb.

At the auction, Dude sold for $2.70 per pound.

Dessert

great practical joke is this terrific chocolate cake. This is something you'll want everyone to recognize as yours, however.

Chocolate-nut upside-down cake

- 1/4 cup butter
- 1/2 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1/2 cup pure maple syrup
- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel
- 1 1/2 cup chopped pecans
- 3 tablespoons dark or light rum
- 1/4 cup unsweetened cocoa powder
- 2 cups all-purpose flour

- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 1/2 cup butter, softened
- 1 cup sour cream
- 1 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 3 eggs, lightly beaten

Position rack in lower third of oven and preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a 12-cup bundt pan or a 10 x 4-inch tube pan. In a small saucepan, over low heat, melt the 1/4 cup butter. Remove from heat. Add brown sugar, maple syrup and orange peel, stirring until well blended. Pour into prepared pan and sprinkle pecans evenly on top. Set aside. In a small bowl, stir rum and cocoa together until smooth. Set aside. In a large bowl, and using electric beater set on low speed, whisk together flour, baking soda, salt and granulated sugar until well blended. Add softened butter, sour cream and vanilla. Increase speed to medium-high and beat until smooth (2 minutes). Add chocolate-rum mixture and eggs and beat until well blended (1 minute). Pour batter over pecan topping, spreading evenly. Bake 50 to 55 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Remove pan to wire rack. Cool 10 minutes before loosening cake from pan with a knife and inverting onto serving platter. Finish cooling on platter. Serve with ice cream.

Church's has the Best Weather Resistant Lumber in Town!!!
Water beads right off Wolmanized EXTRA Weather-Resistant Lumber because it's got something "extra" - it's pressure treated with a special water repellent to prevent moisture penetration from rain and snow. All wood swells and expands when it absorbs moisture. As it dries, it releases moisture and shrinks. Constant expansion and contraction causes grain raising, checking, splintering and warping. Spray or brush-on water sealers can't repel water like Wolmanized EXTRA Lumber - in laboratory tests Wolmanized EXTRA Lumber shows almost two-thirds more moisture resistance than pressure-treated lumber protected with a leading water sealer. Of course, this fantastic lumber is also pressure treated for lifelong protection against termites, rot and decay. Don't settle for ordinary treated lumber. Insist on Wolmanized EXTRA!

Lenny Price

Local man takes a 'soulful' path

Five years ago saxophonist Lenny Price was finishing a five-year hitch with the Navy – at Annapolis Naval Academy. Today the former midshipman and Inkster native is promoting his contemporary jazz music.

Price, 28, recently released a self-published recording of four of his songs under the title track "From My Heart". He will perform the songs at the Inkster Fun Fest Aug. 17 and 18.

"I took a very interesting path to get to where I am," said Price, a tall, slim man who laughs and shakes his head whenever anyone tells him he looks like Eddie Murphy.

Influenced by his father, who served 21 years with the Air Force, Price said he was fascinated with aerospace when he was little and he often built models of aircraft and sent letters to NASA.

Amherstburg seems like worlds apart

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
Belleville City Editor

It's as far away as Ann Arbor, but not by land. Amherstburg, on the other side of the Detroit River in Ontario, is the site of a late-1790s fort and several museums.

Just a half-hour drive on Highway 18 from the Ambassador Bridge, the Ontario city offers visitors an opportunity to tour Fort Malden National Historic Park, the Park House Museum, the North American Black Historical Museum and other historic sites in Essex County.

A visit to Fort Malden is a step in the past for visitors who can view exhibits which trace the history of the area - from both sides of the river - during the War of 1812 and the border raids of the 1830s.

The 11-acre waterfront park includes remains of the original earthworks, a restored barracks, a military pensioner's cottage and two exhibit buildings. The park is staffed by red-coats and other volunteers in period costumes.

Fort Malden is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. through Labor Day, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. the rest of the year. Admission is free.

Other nearby attractions in Amherstburg include:

- Park House Museum, 214 Dalhousie St. The oldest house within 250 miles. It was originally constructed in 1796 near the Rouge River, but was shipped by its Loyalist owner across the Detroit River and reassembled. The house, which features solid log French frame construction, has been restored to depict the lifestyle of the Park family in the 1850s. The second floor of the structure features a variety of pioneer artifacts. It is open between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. through Aug. 31. From Sept. 11 through Dec. 21, hours are 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Sundays and 12:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays. Admission is $1.

- North American Black Historical Museum, 277 King St. It includes an 1840-era cabin and church plus the 1981 Museum and Cultural Centre building. The museum complex is located in the middle of the original black settlement in the city. The exhibits, artifacts, photographs, biographies and art displays depict the history of blacks from their African origins through slavery, freedom and subsequent development. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Friday and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends. Admission is free, but donations are accepted.

- John P. Park Homestead, Fox Conservation Area, County Road 50 and Iler Road. Features restored barns, an ice house, smoke house and blacksmith shop in addition to the home, which was built in 1833 by John Richardson Park. Hours are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays and from 11:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays. The homestead is open Saturdays in August. Admission is 50 cents per person.

- Southwestern Ontario Heritage Village, Essex. Included is a furnished one-room school, railroad station, log cabin and a transportation museum. It is open 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday until Nov. 30. Admission is $2.

- Tilbury West Agricultural Museum, three miles south of Comber. Exhibited are farm tools and machinery used by the early settlers of the area. The museum is open from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday through Monday through October. Admission is free, but donations are accepted.

Jazz

"I don't know how the letters ever got there," he laughed. "I just addressed them to 'NASA Cape Canaveral'."

But one day he picked up a saxophone, not realizing that it would change the course of his life.

"I used to practice for about eight or 10 hours a day in the summer," Price said. "Within eight months I was playing professionally."

He was 15 years old at the time.

But after graduating from high school Price applied to the naval academy, at his father's urging.

The saxophone stayed in Michigan.

"When I went to the naval academy I left my equipment here," he said. "After three weeks I said, 'Ma, send my equipment'."

Price's mother, Thelma, boxed up the saxophone, keyboards and racks and sent it off to Annapolis, Maryland.

"As freshmen we couldn't have stereos in our rooms," Price remembered. But there were no rules prohibiting saxophones, so Price provided the entertainment for his classmates.

While he was in Maryland he met someone in the music business whose influence proved to be even stronger than his father's.

It was while he was playing in a band called "Finerse" that Price became good friends with Bill Pettaway. They collaborated on new songs and he had his first lessons on piano.

But after obtaining a bachelor's degree in physical science at the naval academy Price came back to Michigan, not to the world of music, but to more classrooms. He started substitute teaching at his old alma maters in Inkster.

Pettaway continued with his career in music and in 1989 co-wrote a song called "Girl You Know" that was sung by Milli Vanilli. It became one of the most played songs in 1989, Price said.

Though he was still performing professionally Price eventually left the classroom scene in order to become more familiarized with the record industry. He worked as a manager at Music Land in the Northland Shopping Center.

"Working at Music Land I saw how major record companies packaged albums, what the style of the music was and what was really popular," he said.

"I thought, there's no reason why I can't do this."

Inspired, Price began the venture last year to get his own music recorded.

He started by bringing demo tapes to major record label companies, but they showed little interest in signing him, he said.

"They said, 'Yeah, your music is nice, but it's not what we're looking for.'"

So Price took the initiative to go it alone by trying to self-publish his music.

"You have to come up with a fictitious name certificate and register it with the county to make sure no one else has that name," he said. "Then you have to get a publisher."

In an effort to keep down production costs, Price decided to "wear more than one hat."

"I'm the publisher," he said. He is also the producer, art director, and co-executive director, not to mention the sole musician. He orchestrates all of the music on a computer system, or sequencer, that he described as "a word processor for music."

"That's my 'band,'" he said. When the tape was completed, Price found a receptive audience for his music at WJZZ, a contemporary jazz station in Detroit.

When WJZZ disc jockey Rosetta Hines heard the tape she brought a copy of it to the production manager at the station.

"He immediately liked it," Price said. "The four songs are now played on rotation six times a day."

Price hasn't made it to the "big time" yet, but he's confident he is on his way.

"Every time you hear one of my songs on the radio I earn 12 cents as the artist," he laughed. But he also earns another 12 cents as publisher.

"It adds up," he said.

When people come into Music Land looking for jazz music he tells them he has a tape available at that store.

As of July, 142 copies of "From My Heart" have sold at Music Land in the Northland Mall alone.

"No one has ever brought the tape back," Price said.

And now the "big" record companies are saying, "Let's talk," he said.

Price is still doing "gigs" whenever he gets the chance, whatever the hour.

"If someone calls at ten at

When I went to the naval academy I left my equipment here. After three weeks I said, 'Ma, send my equipment'

— Lenny Price

night I get up and do it."

Price has recently performed at the Stardust Lounge in Inkster and at private parties and cabarets. He also appeared at a July Fourth celebration in Dearborn Heights.

In order to avoid being trapped into a musical category, Price said he does not like to describe his music.

"Hopefully each of the songs create a different mood," he said, though the tape is targeted mainly at adult listeners who have an appreciation for jazz.

People have told him his music sounds similar to David Sanborne's. Among those who have influenced him the most over the years are Jay Beckenstein of "Spyro Gyra" and Erik Mariental of "Chick Corea Electric Band."

Yet his personal signature is clearly on his songs.

"From My Heart" features three instrumental songs including "Double Take," "Stoneface," and "Crystal Dreams." The fourth song, "From My Heart," is the only song on the tape in which Price sings. In each song Price mixes jazz and contemporary sounds that any listener will enjoy.

Lenny Price hopes that within five years he will be "at least" at the same level as David Sanborn.

"Or Arsenio," he joked.

Grandparents honored

By SEAN KELLY
ANP Special Writer

Picking a suitable gift is tough these days. Even worse when the givers are children. In recognition of this, the Michigan Commission and Office of Services to the Aging and the Michigan Association of Foster Grandparents are giving a helping hand Sept. 9 on Grandparent's Day.

"The child may wish to order the certificate for a biological grandparent or just an older adult whom they've adopted as someone special in their lives," said MAFG President Herschell T. Masten. "We expect many of the children served by the state's more than 1200 Foster Grandparents will want one of these certificates to give to that special older person who works with them 20 hours per week."

OSA Director Olivia P. Maynard agreed.

"Because Grandparent's Day is just around the corner, children will want to order their certificates now," Maynard said. "We will be sending the certificates to the youngsters as quickly as the requests are received."

The certificates ask the youngster to write in the name of the recipient and the date presented.

"We hope that lots of youngsters will take advantage of this opportunity to present one of these certificates this year," Masten said.

Certificates will be mailed free of charge. They may be ordered by writing Grandparent's Certificate, c/o Michigan Office of Services to the Aging, P.O. Box 30026, Lansing, Mich. 48909.
